

POLS 4600
 Prof. Anthony Madonna
 The University of Georgia
 ajmadonn@uga.edu
 10/19/17

10/19/17 Outline

I. Introduction

- a. Clip
- b. News
- c. sign-in
- d. Research paper
- e. Bill history
- f. Questions?

II. Getting a Job

III. Senate Floor

- a. Filibusters
- b. Cloture
- c. Amending
- d. Final Passage
- e. Reconciliation
- f. Vote-a-Rama

IV. Resolving Differences

- a. Ping-pong
- b. Conference

IV. Finocchiaro and Rohde Terms

- a. Special rule
- b. PQ motion on a special rule
- c. Positive agenda control
- d. Negative agenda control
- e. Roll rate
- f. Traceability again

V. Finocchiaro and Rohde

- a. CPG v. Party Cartel Theory
- b. argument
- c. Who cares?
- d. Data/hypotheses
- e. Evidence/conclusions?

VI. Conclusion

- a. For Tuesday

News

Politico: "The debate hasn't even started on the GOP's plan, yet some senators are pushing their own tax proposals, while others are increasingly emboldened to defy the Republican president. It's a dangerous mix considering that McConnell can only lose two votes assuming Democrats band together in opposition." Said White House budget director Mick Mulvaney: "We look at the Senate and go: 'What the hell is going on?'" He added: "The House passed health care, the House has already passed its budget, which is the first step of tax reform. The Senate hasn't done any of that. Hell, the Senate can't pass any of our confirmations. You ask me if the Republican-controlled Senate is an impediment to the administration's agenda: All I can tell you is so far, the answer's yes."

Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell (R-KY) "is preparing to hold the chamber in session for more rigorous workweeks, including Fridays and possibly even weekends," Politico reports. "The Senate GOP discussed a more aggressive schedule at Tuesday's party lunch and the majority of the conference agreed." "The Senate has come under criticisms from conservatives for its light workweeks, typically spanning from Monday evening to early Thursday afternoon. But without buy-in from his members, it's been difficult to hold the chamber in open longer without facing the possibility of attendance problems and failed votes."

Florida Gov. Rick Scott (R) has declared a state of emergency as hundreds of law enforcement officers from across the state gather at the University of Florida in advance of a Thursday event by white nationalist Richard Spencer, USA Today reports. "The governor's executive order places the state agency usually responsible for hurricanes at the front of the effort to preserve order during the event. It also places the Florida National Guard on standby."

Conclusion

Have a great day.

For Tuesday: Cox and McCubbins (2002). Bill history example
